Presented by National Institutes of Health Staff

Tuesday, October 19, 2010
10:00 A.M. – 3:00 P.M.
National Institutes of Health
Bethesda, MD

This Workshop Will:
Introduce graduate students to the various entities at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Students will be given an overview of the NIH specifically geared for graduate students. They will also have the opportunity to tour the Mark O. Hatfield Clinical Research Center and the National Library of Medicine. All students must bring an official picture government ID card (driver’s license, passport, military ID). ALL attendees MUST PRE-REGISTER with Dr. Pressley by sending an e-mail to him at ppressley@howard.edu. This seminar has limited seating and will be on a first come, first served basis.
